DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1, 8, and 10, recite the limitations "the filler material, the artificial plant stems, and the flypaper" repeatedly. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

For example, claim 3 recites "comprises a _____ disposed in the container". This type of error occurs repeatedly in several of the claims, where it appears words have been omitted. Also, as another example, claim 8, lines 14-16 contain awkward and confusing language.

Regarding claim 9, this claim does not appear to further limit the apparatus claim of instant claim 8. Also, it is unclear as to whether the applicant intends to claim an apparatus or a method.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3643

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 (as best understood) are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hight US6266917.

Regarding claims 1, 4,5, 6,7,8, and 10 (as best understood), Hight discloses A fly trap for removing flies from places where people gather comprising: means for holding filler material (col 2, lines 10 and 11), plant stems 26, and flypaper (col 2, line 4); means for providing a medium (col 2, line 11) in which the plant stems can be held firmly in place, and upon which flypaper can be placed, means for holding plant stems, and flypaper; means for giving artificial the appearance of being an ordinary decorative artificial plant (refer to figure 1) the fly trap entirely inserted to said filler material (col 2, lines 1-5), firmly embedded to said means for providing a medium in which the plant stems can be held firmly in place, and upon which the fly paper can be placed; means for catching and holding flies (col 2, line 4) that touch said adhesive surface, removably positioned to said means for providing a medium in which the plant stems can be held firmly in place, and upon which the fly paper can be placed; means for catching and holding flies, permanently bonded to said means for catching and holding flies that touch said adhesive surface; and means for attracting flies to the flypaper with adhesive surface, permanently imbued to said means for catching and holding flies that touch said adhesive surface, and periodically imbued to said means for providing a medium in which the plant stems can be held firmly in place, and upon which the fly paper can be placed (col 2, lines 1-11).

Hight does not disclose that the plant stems are artificial.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use artificial plants in place of live ones, as it is old and notoriously well known in the art to use artificial plants in lieu of live plants when decorating and to decrease maintenance.

Regarding claim 2 (as best understood) Hight discloses that the structure comprises an open top container 4.

Regarding claim 3 (as best understood) Hight discloses the medium (in this case soil—col 2, line 11) on which the flypaper can be placed has a predetermined density.

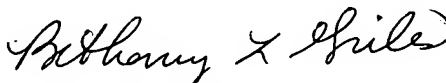

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Babb US5383301; Rusco et al. US5193302; Simpson US6145242; Miller US5657575; Silvandersson et al. US6438894; Holder US6155002; Reed US6655083; Spelt US6161329.
